DISCUSS

1. Many people claim to have had near-death experiences, some widely sharing their stories. Others tell of being in a deep coma, breath and heartbeat barely discernible, to all appearances dead. What differences do you see between these stories and the eyewitness accounts of Jesus resurrection? How do we know Jesus was really dead? Couldn't the stories have been faked?
2. What elements add the "ring of truth" to the resurrection accounts in the four Gospels? Which aspects do you find most (or least) convincing?
3. If you had been eyewitness to Jesus' resurrection and were writing an account of what you had seen, would you do it differently? Are there things you would add or leave out? How would you write up the story to make it seem plausible?
4. Is the resurrection really necessary to the message of Christianity? Can't you accept and follow Jesus' teachings because of their inherent goodness? Discuss.
